

Rose Quartz & Serenity

The amount of science we can do these days is enormous: resolving galaxies in the blink of an Extremely Large Telescope, replacing string and rust with a shimmering mess of mirrors, shifting legs constantly to adapt to the earth's turbulent atmosphere with a textured tread and front zipper closure

the surface disappears
under high exposure

these nightmare reflective platform boots won't let ya get any sleep with their shine and glare shade and stare shape-shifting oil-slicked deathtrap love that's the Color of the Year—every year even this year: Simply White OC-117 or last year: Serpentine SS-SSS...

to resist penetrative bacteria and disrupt evil cell division at every step deflecting criticism in a gradient sunrise like suspicion pulsing up the back of the neck a suspicion green as a reptile, blue as a fish a proof-of-concept synthetic microfish powered by hydrogen peroxide wriggling through rough old seaweed surfacing in the slimy drain puddle of need reflecting

Rose Quartz 13-1520
& Serenity 15-3919
cracking hard into yellow ice cubes fizzing soda with a citrus twist delivering a million tiny, harmless skinpricks you look down involuntarily you see a dark thing in the water you see a swimming shadow with two broad fins... dorsal, anal... but it's just a snorkeler just a gross fish

a pink, sunburned fish in the shade of Radiant Orchid
