YOU MAKE THE PROGRAM FOR LIFE, YOU MAKE THE PROGRAM

Weeping sets a body in liquid expansion: to comfort someone who is about to burst into tears during an emotional wreck.

Someone else's suffering is a mutual dictatorship between crier and soother.

To
me
eyes
are bottles to
drink from,
that adapt their
shape to their
contents, the recipient of my tears
is not always the same: I adjust.

Can
I lick
your salty cheeks
again? Let me
see your curled
lips and stay in the loop.

The
amorous
body flows
to prove that it
is a connoisseur
of love. If fluid,
emotions can circulate
as unique objects, as decorative tears are jewels for sadness.
